Introduction:

For as long as I can remember I have had a fascination with, and admiration for, the products that the creative people in the fine arts and performing arts fields produced. So when it was my time to choose a path to follow in life, I decided to go on to see what creative, artistic products I could create. The saying "You only have one life to live, so you should follow your dreams" made sense to me.

A look back:

My father's advice to me when I completed art school in 1975 was, "I would advise you to develop a trade that you can fall back on, whenever you need to supplement your artistic career." Here is a timeline summary of my creative career and the trades that went along with it.

COPPLESTONE IS ALL ABOUT PASSION

The artist David Coplestone speaks about the dreams and goals that inspired him to create.

David W. Coplestone paints portraits, landscapes and seascapes. His painting style is fairly representational with an emphasis on color and the free choice of color. David says that he chose to be an artist because he wanted to be a part of the beauty, emotion and the passion of art. He says "I am a person who believes that it's a wonderful thing when people follow their dreams. At 19 I dreamed that I would follow my passion to create and to become an artist. I didn't know when I began if my efforts would be successful or not, but I knew that I didn't want to arrive at the end of my life and wish that I had lived my life doing something that I was passionate about. I knew that I couldn't fail if my goal was to follow my dreams and create. I realized that I would probably need to make some compromises with my time to survive the struggle, but that would be fine, too.

I chose fine art because of the intense emotions that I would feel while viewing great paintings by artists I admired, and because I believed that the creative environment of the artist's studio would be the best place for me to attempt to realize my creative potential. In my studio I have silence, music, videos, books, I am free to think, sing, dance, laugh, I can take a blank canvas, and on it arrange the colors that I love, and watch the image that I am envisioning develop in front of me. I believed that a life with so much love and passion in it would be a wonderful life. That was the dream.

I hope that when someone views a painting of mine that the colors that I have mixed and the method that I have used to apply them to the canvas, inspire in the viewer the joyful feelings that motivated me to paint the subject in the first place. If a painting of mine can instill in the viewer the love of nature, the love of art, or the love for the subject of a painting that I was feeling at the time that I painted it, then I have achieved a great result. I have accomplished my goal to create, to share my passion for art and beauty, and to follow my dream."
