Orbiter Baseball is an orbiting ball-toss / ring-toss game played in a manner similar to professional baseball, where a bucket or ringer is made with;

Swing #1 is a single base hit.

Swing #2 is a double.

Swing #3 is a triple.

Swing #4 is a home run.

There are nine innings per game.

There are three outs per team per inning.

A missed swing is an out.

A topped swing is an out.

Batters always choose which swings they attempt to make.

Runners advance ahead of the batter, according to the swing type made.

A GRAND SLAM is scored when all four swing types are successfully made in sequence. It scores four runs plus any runners on base. The Topped Swing rules do not apply while a GRAND SLAM attempt is in progress. Opponents may attempt to top the entire GRAND SLAM sequence once it has been completed.

A player may attempt a Grand Slam at any time in their turn by simply announcing it. The attempt counts as one swing. It is counted as an out if they fail to make all four Swings: #1, #2, #3, and #4 in succession. A Topped Swing - Whenever a player makes a bucket or a ringer, a player on the opposing team must attempt to top that swing by completing a bucket or a ringer of that same swing type. A successful swing topped by a player on the opposing team is an out and counts as a caught fly ball; base runners do not advance.

When a player tops a swing, they may attempt to make a double play by completing swing number four; if successful, one additional base runner is also out.

Keep track of hits, base runners, outs, and runs scored.
